Kimberly first joined Moore Ingram Johnson & Steele in 2014 as a member of the firm's Litigation Department. Her practice areas include commercial litigation, business litigation, insurance and liability defense, and product liability defense. Kimberly is admitted to practice in both Florida and Georgia, and she currently practices in our Orlando, Florida office.

Kimberly attended the University of Miami and earned a Bachelor of Science in Communications. During college, she helped establish the first University of Miami Dance Marathon, a fundraising event for the Children's Miracle Network, and Kimberly also worked as a sideline field reporter for the Hurricane Football team. After college, Kimberly moved North to the Deep South and attended Ole Miss. She graduated cum laude from the University of Mississippi School of Law. In law school, Kimberly was a member of both The Mississippi Law Journal Executive Editorial Board, as the Notes and Comments Editor, and the Moot Court Appellate Advocacy Board where she earned a championship title and an overall best oral advocate award.

After her graduation from law school, Kimberly was a volunteer lawyer for Judge Marcia Morales Howard in the District Court for the Middle District of Florida.
